

The Altruistic Traveller

Sharing stories of responsible tourism and community development from around the world

About

I am a freelance journalist & blogger specialising in stories about responsible tourism, fair trade and community development, with the aim to promote ethical values and give a voice to organisations who are making the world a better place. As a Lonely Planet Pathfinder, member of the Travel+Social Good Media network and Ambassador for responsible travel organisations GivingWay, Grassroots Volunteering and Visit.Org, I have helped many organisations and local businesses to share their stories of sustainable development.
